

The Price is Right

Joe runs a convenience store. His business model is that for every item sold he keeps 30% of the selling price for his own expenses and used the rest to pay the distributor for the item. If the distributor charges $4.34 for an item, what price should Joe charge his customers?